Objectives of the Good Industry Practices Workshop

The WLPGA has recently updated and re-published the two Guidelines, Good Business Practices and Good Safety Practices.

Both publications have been used as reference documents by the LP Gas industry for several years in order to encourage good, sound and safe practices across the global LP Gas business, and in turn promote strong sustainable LP Gas businesses, especially in developing markets.

During the past two years the WLPGA has conducted workshops with key stakeholders in several countries where attention has been needed to address some of the more critical situations.

The objective of these workshops has been to identify some of the more common business practices that are presenting a challenge to the safe and sustainable growth of the LP Gas industry, share some common experiences and develop an agreed plan of action to improve conditions.

The programme will:

- Assemble together for half a day the key stakeholders within the LP Gas industry to focus on and discuss the business practices in India
- Identify and share some of the business practices that are evident in India that require action
- Secure common agreement from all key stakeholders to address these issues
- Develop action plans and a timetable to implement a series of improvements
